Happy Friday everyone!

Well the rain might be back for today, but we've enjoyed a taste of Summer weather this week and it looks like there's more to come over the next few days. Thinking ahead, please consider the weather forecast in advance and send your child to school with sun lotion applied, a cap/sun hat and sunglasses on sunny days.

Plant sale

Thank you to the PTA and helpers for organising a very successful plant sale. I am delighted to report that about £500 was raised to support the school. These initiatives are vital to the school and are greatly appreciated. Thank you to everyone who bought something from the plant sale too.

Online safety

Teaching our pupils to stay safe online is an essential part of our PSHE curriculum. You'll remember that last term, we arranged for a visit from 2 PCSOs to discuss online safety with our pupils. I feel this is an area which requires ongoing focus, given the importance of online safety for our pupils' lives ahead.

CEOP Education is a team set up by the National Crime Agency, who produce educational support for pupils, parents and schools around key areas of online safety. You can check out their website here.

Over the coming weeks, I'll share a set of parent guides alongside each Friday newsletter. These are meant to be supportive, informative and to promote conversations at home about how we stay safe online.

The website contains an 'information for parents section' should you have any queries or wish to know more. If anything gives you immediate concerns, there's a direct link here to report any incidents.

Superstars

Our Year 2 pupils have been busily completing their Key Stage 1 SATs throughout this week, and we are very proud of their hard work and determination to 'show what they know'. Unlike the Year 6 SATs, these can be spread out throughout May, and the Year 2 pupils will complete their final 'quizzes' next week.

I hope we all get to enjoy sunnier weather this weekend.
